After getting into acting through making my own short films of the Harry Potter saga (yelling Stupify in fields with a stick) I have been obsessed with making audiences feel a variety of emotions, whether that be laughter or tears, to help them escape into new worlds. In particular, I am most interested in helping audiences understand the distressing nature of adolescence and the mental health problems that come with it.

As a recent graduate, I look forward to working with highly passionate & creative people that strive to educate and show the reality of our society in the most creative ways.
